Date	Topics/ Skills covered
19 April 2023	Materials and compositional sketches. In this initial session we will discuss the materials and processes that we will use over the course of the next few hours in relation to the completion of several artworks that respond to the idea of capturing a 'sense of place'. Artists will have the opportunity to ask questions and use their own tools if required. We will then discuss compositional sketches and the importance of these in beginning our artwork series.
26 April 2023	Applying underpainting- capturing the composition. We will start off by make use of our initial compositional sketches alongside other reference material such as photographs to begin our artworks. Working on several pieces at once in stages will allow us to experieiment and explore different compositions. Working in layers through thin underpainting- artists will start to build up their series of artworks through simple, loose compositional studies.
3 May 2023	Light and tone. Artists will now begin to apply areas of light and tone to their artworks. Working again in stages, we will discuss how and why these elements are important in our studies. We will also aim again to work in fresh, clean colours- allowing for drying time between stages by working on several at a time.
10 May 2023	Colour mixing and application techniques. As we begin to apply several layers to our artworks- some studies may appear stronger than others. This is where we begin to refine the series- leaving some behind and taking others forward. Colours now become more selective based on each individual piece. Exciting and intersting marks remain- the attempt to not overwork remains constant!
17 May 2023	Final refinements and conclusions. We approach the end of the course with a series of artworks- some of which may be near completion- others further away. Artists will make decsions on prefered artworks to finish and refine to a satisfactory level. We will discuss the importances of not overworking and of trying to keep exciting marks and fresh colours to a piece. The final aim is to have one, two or maybe even more artworks that we are pleased with! Sometimes however it is the process that opens up new ways of thinking about our art.
