Course overview

This exciting and experimental course explores contemporary painting processes and surfaces, testing and discovering new material languages in paint. You will expand and develop your understanding of what paint can do, and the specific material qualities of paints, contextualised with contemporary artists and movements, and your own individual subjects and themes. You will investigate how various paints (including spray paints, encaustic wax, gloss paints, acrylics) feel and handle and how to use them. You will also explore the interaction of paint with other surfaces such as found objects and photo transfer.

Learning Outcomes

Students will be able to:

Analyse the work of others and apply findings to their own work
Create experimental paintings using different media and surfaces.
Research, plan and realise a self initiated project.

Weekly breakdown

Below is a weekly breakdown of what will be covered. Please bear in mind that these sessions will move with the pace of the group, so a degree of flexibility of what will be covered on which day will be employed.

Wk	Date	Topic/Activity	Location & Tutor(s)	What to bring
1	Wednesday 15th January 2025	Transparency and painting as collage In this first week we will be using acetate as a painting surface, exploring the transparency and plastic sheen. Starting with a presentation and group discussion, we will explore how to break habitual approaches to composition through the use of collage and source material in painting. We will then work on sheets of clear acetate, utilising the transparency to create layered, double sided works, which employ the quick drying nature and stretch of acrylic paint; the 'utopian' colours and soft edges of spray paint; and the glossiness and dense coverage of household paints. Brushwork and flatness is very apparent on clear plastic surfaces, and these gestural and non-gestural techniques can be considered and utilised.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	There will be a cost of £10 per student to cover acetates, spray paints, and some household paints. Also please bring acrylic paints with you and decent brushes, of all sizes
2	Wednesday 22nd January 2025	Spray paints and stencils This week we will start with a presentation of artists who use spray paint in painting. Then we will make our own stencils and work with spray paints in this way combined with freehand techniques.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	Surfaces to paint on, ie MDF boards, canvases, etc - if possible not canvas boards. Also bring acrylic paints, mediums, and brushes.
3	Wednesday 29th January 2025	Photo transfer and paint This week we will use the photo-transfer technique to transfer images to surfaces, and then work into and on them with paint.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	As above plus photocopies for photo-transfer
4	Wednesday 5th February 2025	Encaustic wax painting This week we will be using heated encaustic wax as a medium for painting, mixing paint with it and creating semi transparent layers. This is a lovely medium which can be gestural and delicate at the same time.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	Surfaces to paint on, ie MDF boards, canvases, etc - if possible not canvas boards. Oil paints and/or dry pigments, and brushes - of all sizes including big brushes.
5	Wednesday 12th February 2025	Exploring acrylics - layers and subtlety Acrylic paints have wonderful properties. You will explore these by working in two different ways with them. This first week we will build up a series of very thin layers of acrylic washes to create density, subtlety, colour, and depth, with painting 'incidents' (images or abstract forms) located on different layers, thereby creating a sense of space, ambiguity, and intrigue within a very flat surface.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	Surfaces to paint on, ie MDF boards, canvases, etc. Acrylic paints, mediums, and brushes - of all sizes including big brushes.

Reading Week
6	Wednesday 26th February 2025	Exploring acrylics and oils - masking techniques, flatness and plasticity, juxtaposed with the language of oil paint This week we will continue with our exploration of acrylic paint, this time employing its flat plasticity and the disappearance of brushwork and gesture, using tape to mask edges and areas. We will layer flat areas of forms and colour to discover how to create a sense of space and hard edged vibrancy. We will also combine this with the luscious effects of oil paint sitting on top of the acrylic, trying out techniques such as blurring.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	Surfaces to paint on, ie MDF boards, canvases, etc. Acrylic and oil paints, mediums, and brushes - of all sizes including big brushes.
7	Wednesday 5th March 2025	Responding to found surfaces This week we are exploring and playing with the actual surface, so our painting surface / support becomes as much a part of the artwork as the paint. In using the surface as a medium, we need to consider the material properties, language, and associations of the surfaces we use. In preparation, you will find suitable and exciting surfaces to use, which may be irregular, found objects, or fragments - and will work with them to draw out their material qualities, adding to or subverting them via their painted interventions.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	A range of surfaces as described left. We will discuss this the preceding week. Acrylic and oil paints, mediums, and brushes - of all sizes including big brushes
8	Wednesday 12th March 2025	Painting as process The day will begin with a group discussion of painters who use process as the primary element in their work, considering how they utilise the material language of paint, as affected by time, movement, repetition, and chance, to create paintings. We will then make our own paintings which explore the idea of process as form, investigating the properties of traditional oil paint and 'household' paints - pouring, dripping, scraping, erasing, and the potential temporal qualities of paint, creating something which is unfixed and changes over time. We will make our own painting devices to extend our range outside the paintbrush.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	Surfaces to paint on, ie MDF boards, canvases, etc. Acrylic and oil paints, mediums, and brushes, of all sizes including big brushes.
9	Wednesday 19th March 2025	Personal project These last two weeks students can develop their own personal project drawing on themes explored in the course.	Alison Hand Mermaid court Studio 1	Surfaces to paint on, ie MDF boards, canvases, etc. Acrylic and oil paints, mediums, and brushes, of all sizes including big brushes.
